Hwy. 603 drug seizure leads to Alabama bust

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

The investigation following Tuesday arrests and the confiscation of approximately 50 pounds of marijuana and nearly $40,000 in Hancock County led to four other arrests and additional narcotics seizure in Mobile County, Alabama.

Mobile residents Nella Lober Crabtree, Sharon Melinda Dugitt, Richard Wayne Nolen and Darrel Lee Raley were arrested early Wednesday morning following the investigation of the Hancock County arrests, said Gary Carter, resident agent in charge of the Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) in Mobile.

Approximately 130 pounds of marijuana, seven ounces of cocaine and 100 dilaudid capsules were found at the Firetower Drive residence where the four of Mobile were arrested, Carter said.

Tuesday during a routine driver's license check on Hwy. 603 Mississippi State Trooper Curtis Newman smelled marijuana in the vehicle and asked the driver to pull off the side of the road.

Further investigation led to the discovery of two bales and two small bags of marijuana (approximately 50 pounds), $35,985 in cash in a grocery sack and two hand guns.

Newman and Trooper Freddie Keel arrested the driver and two passengers in the car.

Juan M. Zambrano, 23; Javier Garcia Salinas, 25; and Juanita G. Sanchez, 26, were arrested and charged with felonious possession of marijuana and possession of concealed weapons.

All three are being held in the Hancock County Jail on a $250,000 bond.

Hancock County Investigator Alvin Ladner assisted agents of the DEA with the Mobile County arrests, along with officers from the Alabama Bureau of Investigation, City of Mobile Police Department, Federal Bureau of Investigation, Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, Mobile County Sheriff's Office and U.S. Customs.

Corkern paroled

By DENA BISNETTE

Robert Corkern, originally sentenced to serve four years in prison for his part in two January 1984 shooting deaths, was paroled Monday.

Judge James Thomas changed Corkern's sentence to three years on parole and transferred him to Lamar County, where Corkern said he plans to live with a relative.

He also required Corkern to pay court costs within 90 days after his release.

Corkern, 22, of Lakeshore, has been jailed since Jan. 26 of last year in connection with the deaths of Gerald Comiskey of Waveland and Keith McMillan of New Orleans, La. He was tried in July 1984 but the jury declared a mistrial.

Corkern testified in co-defendant Allen Nicolau's trial and later pleaded guilty to reduced charges of conspiracy to commit armed robbery and accessory after the fact to murder.

On Oct. 26, Thomas sentenced him to 10 years with six years suspended on the robbery charge and five years with one suspended on the murder charge, to be served concurrently.

DeLisle, Pass parents plan anti-consolidation campaign

By DENA BISNETTE

DeLisle parents have started a letter-writing campaign to fight a consolidation proposal they feel threatens the existence of DeLisle Elementary School.

About 40 parents and teachers met Monday night with Pass Christian Superintendent of Education Leroy Lizana to discuss the proposal, which but you first have to take some time to get involved," Lizana said.

"They listen to numbers, but not to numbers on a petition. They listen to those who take the time to contact them individually."

Lizana stressed the importance of opposing the proposal to consolidate the Pass Christian District with Long Beach rather than supporting a delay in implementing consolidation.

The present proposal does not specifically call for the elimination of smaller schools like DeLisle.

However, past consolidation efforts in 1957 and 1958 closed many of Mississippi's neighborhood schools and Lizana said the parents of DeLisle students expressed concern that the 186-student facility might be shut down.

"Losing our school would be like losing our local identity," he said. "Communities like DeLisle identify strongly with their schools."

A delay in implementation, he explained, would result in making the plan presently proposed more difficult to change.

On the present schedule, school districts have until Feb. 15 to submit alternate plans to the State Department of Education.

According to Lizana, the Pass Christian District has its attorney working on an alternate plan.

Lizana advised parents to request that the legislature extend the Feb. 15 deadline.

Lizana explained that alternate plans could fail to meet State Department of Education criteria requiring a district to have at least 3,000 students.

In addition, the amount of money spent per year on each individual student must not be higher than 21 percent of the amount spent by neighboring districts.

Pass Christian, with only 1,500 students and an average wealth per pupil of $4,500 per year, fails to meet both criteria, the superintendent said.

Devising an acceptable alternate plan could be impossible given the Feb. 15 deadline and would require the district to annex other areas in West Harrison County, he added.

Other concerns Lizana discussed at the meeting include an additional tax burden after consolidation, a possible decline in the quality of education and loss of representation on the new school board.

The superintendent said that Pass Christian, which already operates its own kindergarten program, has a bond of indebtedness of only $500,000. Most school buildings, with the exception of the district's vocational-technical facility, are paid for, he said.

Long Beach, however, has no kindergarten and is currently trying to pass a bond issue to pay for kindergarten construction and implementation.

Taxpayers currently in the Pass Christian district would have to pay additional taxes created by that bond issue in addition to the taxes on the bonds of indebtedness for both districts.

Lizana's concerns about the quali-

Two die after crash

A Pass Christian man and a Long Beach woman died of injuries sustained Sunday night in a one-car wreck on Rock Ranch Road, about 10 miles north of Picayune, off Hwy. 43.

James B. Bourne, 43, and Norma Myers, 44, were found at about 6:30 a.m. Monday, said Pearl River County Coroner Norman Sims.

Myers was pronounced dead at the scene. Bourne had head injuries and was rushed to L.O. Crosby Memorial Hospital in Picayune, Sims said.

Bourne was transferred to Ochsner Medical Center in New Orleans where he died at 4:20 p.m. Monday, officials said.

Sims said the wreck probably occurred between 6 and 7 p.m. Sunday when there was heavy rain and fog in the area.

Bourne apparently failed to negotiate a curve and slammed into a tree, Sims said.

Police Reports

PEARLINGTON BURGLARY

Hancock County Investigator Delbert Seay arrested Terry Vernon Frazier, 19, and Wayne Carver, 25, both of General Delivery, Pearlington, Tuesday in connection with the burglary of the Lazy Boy Inn in Pearlington.

Frazier was released on a $2,500 bond, but Carver was held for parole violations.

BAYSIDE PARK BURGLARY

Nemiah Jabberd, P.O. 178, Lakeshore, and two juveniles were arrested Friday by Hancock County Sheriff's Department officers and charged with the burglary of the Alma Matthews residence in BaySide park.

Some of the property stolen in the Jan. 3 burglary was recovered. Items stolen included a citizen's band radio base, shot gun, television, stereo and typewriter.

DRUG ARREST

George Lee Sanders, 35, of Dallas, Texas was arrested Tuesday by Bay police officers and charged with possession of marijuana with the intent to sell, possession of a concealed weapon and obstructing traffic.

When arrested Sanders had in his possession approximately one pound of marijuana, as well as a sawed-off 410 shotgun, acting Bay Police Chief Murray Ladner said.

Sanders is being held in the Hancock County Jail on a $50,000 bond.

LEROY LIZANA

calls for the consolidation of the Pass Christian Schools with the existing Long Beach District.

Lizana and Ron Massey, a DeLisle parent who served as chairman of the meeting, urged parents and teachers to write to local legislators in opposition to the proposal.

Architect to begin final plans for new jail

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors has decided to proceed with work on a new county jail without purchasing additional land for the project.

On Wednesday, the board authorized architect Fred Wagner to begin surveys and plans for a jail on county land behind the Sea Coast Echo building.

Wagner had previously submitted a plan but it was a preliminary design not specific to the site the county selected. The preliminary plan was provided to allow the board to formulate the $2.5 million cost estimate used for the jail bond issue.

The $10,000 for the preliminary plan will be credited to Wagner's fee, which will be 8.5 percent of the jail's total cost. The fee includes the cost of engineering consultants and a jail consultant.

In addition, the board voted to rescind an order offering to purchase adjacent property from Jules Lagarde.

Board attorney Walter Gex III said Lagarde had been offered $28,500, the appraised value of his property, but had turned it down.

In other business, the board discussed three illegal dumps on 16th section land.

The dumps are on school property, but an official for the State Bureau of Pollution Control has named the supervisors responsible for clean-up because they have the responsibility for county garbage disposal.

The board has authorized Jeff Taylor of Gulf Regional Planning Commission to look into the possibility of starting a garbage collection and disposal system in the county.

At present, county residents bring their garbage to the county landfill at Catatoula.

Taylor said he also preparing an application for an extension on the May 31 clean-up deadline.

"First we have to locate a landfill the pollution control people can certify, then we need to go about the general clean-up," said Beat Two located in Beat Three, could be turned into landfills.

He expressed doubt about cleaning the dump at Pearlington. "That probably got out of hand about 20 years ago. It might take more money than the county has to clean it up," he said.

He said the board will probably collaborate with the Hancock County School Board on clean-up efforts since the dumps are on 16th section land.

The supervisors, however, still dispute the BPC decision that the county should clean up the dumps, since the county does not lease the land.

"As far as the two dumps in my beat are concerned, I'm willing to accept some of the responsibility but

Chamber committee opens anti-litter competition

The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's Beautification Committee is seeking entries to name the "War On Ugliness" anti-litter mascot.

Kathy Fernandez, contest chairman, stated, "Last year we conducted a poster contest for area students and the winning entry, which depicted a cartoon-like garbage can figure now needs a name and identity."

Peter Neely, a student at St. Stanislaus won last year's contest with this unique characterization.

The contest is open to all Hancock County residents. Entry forms can be picked up at the chamber office on US-90, from Fernandez at Coast

Electric, or The Sea Coast Echo office.

A $25 cash prize will be awarded to the person submitting the winning entry. Entries must be returned to the chamber office by Friday, Feb. 22 and the winner will be selected on March 1.

"We are going to use the anti-litter mascot throughout the year to help increase the awareness of area residents of the trash and litter problems which continue to plague Hancock County," Fernandez said.

"Litter has only one place in Hancock County, and that place is a garbage can," she stated.

Reward offered for information on persons removing stop signs

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

A juvenile resident of Bay St. Louis was arrested in connection with the removal of stop signs at the Sycamore-St. Francis intersection, Murray Ladner, acting Bay police chief, reported Wednesday morning.

The juvenile was arrested Wednesday morning following surveillance of the area Tuesday night by Bay police officers.

Ladner said although one person had been arrested, a $100 reward offered Tuesday was still in force. Bay St. Louis Police offered the reward for information leading to the conviction of the person or persons who have removed stop signs at the Sycamore-St. Francis intersection.

"If people continue taking the stop signs down, there is going to be a bad accident at that intersection," Ladner said.

The four-way stop signs were installed at the Sycamore-St. Francis intersection Friday, along with several "no parking" signs in the area.

"These signs were installed to help ease traffic congestion in the area, but several were removed within 48 hours of being installed," Ladner explained.

Ladner said the stop signs were reinstalled Monday and set in concrete but another sign was missing Tuesday morning.

"Someone is going to run through the intersection not knowing about the missing stop sign and hit another car," he said.

The person removing these signs will be prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law, Ladner said.

If there is an accident at this intersection because of a missing stop sign, a person guilty of removing the signs, could be liable for the accident, he said.

Ladner said he believes because of the 100 percent support from area residents, the parking problems will be resolved soon.

"After we have towed away about 50 cars we shouldn't have anymore trouble, but we will continue to tow the cars away as long as people park in the 'no parking' zone," he added.

Ladner said there were 11 cars towed away from the no parking zone Saturday and that three other vehicle owners had paid the $30 wrecker fee at the scene.

Roosevelt Redmond, 18, was arrested early Sunday morning after fleeing the scene when approached by an officer.

After a car chase Redmond was apprehended when his vehicle struck a police vehicle, Ladner said.

Redmond was charged with no driver's license, excessive speeding, failure to yield to blue light, reckless driving, failure to yield to a stop sign, damage of city property and improper parking.

He was booked in the county jail with a $700 bond set.

Commission to reject asphalt paving project

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

Michael E. Smith, engineer for the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission recommended to commission members Monday that an asphalt paving job at Stennis International Airport be rejected.

Smith's recommendation was based on test results by Delta Testing and Inspection, Inc. which revealed that the paved parking apron constructed by Bond Paving, Inc. of Gulfport had a low stability.

The test was based on 22 asphalt cores taken throughout the parking apron and 42 nuclear density readings.

Findings included that sand content in the asphalt was 60 percent, nearly twice the amount normally used in gravel mixes, apparent errors in the mix design and that the minimum density was far below contractual requirements.

Commission attorney Gerald Gex told members a hearing has been scheduled in Circuit Court Feb. 4 on the matter.

During the meeting, the commission also accepted a bid of $140,394 from Barrier Construction Co. of New Orleans for resurfacing and widening of the access road at Stennis.

In other business the commission: —Accepted a bid of $5 per hour from Dependable Security for a Port Bienville Industrial park security agent.

—Granted a 12-month extension to the Corps of Engineers for the removal of a sunken tugboat from and access channel at Port Bienville.

—Decided that the elevated water tower under construction at the airport would be painted blue.

Travirca elected

The Southern Mississippi Planning and Development District's Board of Directors has elected its officers for the 1985 year.

At its regular meeting last week, the board elected G. N. Creel, Chancery clerk of Harrison County as president; Reverend L. Z. Blankinship Jr., executive director of Pearl River Valley Opportunity, first vice president; Lynn Cartledge, president of the Forrest County Board of Supervisors, second vice president; Mrs. Harriett Braman, District 2 supervisor from George County, secretary; and James N. Travirca, District 5 supervisor from Hancock County, treasurer.

The board's responsibility, under the leadership of those officers, is to set policy and direction for the activities of the Southern Mississippi Planning and Development District.

The district serves Mississippi's southeasternmost 15 counties and is responsible for economic development and aging services planning activities in this area.

The district's primary goal is to help local governments serve their communities. Last year alone, more than $4 million dollars was obtained from the federal government to improve the infrastructure of communities by helping to fund water, sewer, and other public utilities, and to loan funds to businesses that were willing to create jobs.

Funding for aging services through its Aging Division totaled more than $3 million last year.

Mothers to picket for child support

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

Hancock County residents Janice Bourgeois and Diane Seal are organizing a group called "Children Have A Right Too" (CHART) to protest unenforced child support judgments awarded in the county.

The group is for women who have been awarded judgements against estranged husbands and have been unable to collect child support payments ordered by the judges.

CHART's first meeting is scheduled to be held on the Courthouse steps Tuesday at 6 p.m.

"We're mad, we're furious and we are tired of being awarded judgements that are not enforced," Bourgeois said.

"It's not right that these men who continuously refuse to help support their own children get off with a slap on the wrist by the judge," she added.

Seal added that there seemed to be no enforcement by the sheriff's office on the judgements in Hancock County.

"We can't afford to keep hiring lawyers to get judgements awarded so we can raise the children, when they are meaningless because they are not enforced," Bourgeois said.

"We are just fighting for our children's rights," she added.

Both Bourgeois and Seal said they are planning to picket the Courthouse in protest of the judgements against fathers of children who are not paying child support as ordered by the courts.

"Our goal is to get the judgements enforced, that's all we want," Bourgeois said.

For more information about the organization call Bourgeois at 487-1057, or Seal at 487-7743.

Registration for pre-kindergarten and kindergarten programs will be held through Feb. 8 at Annunciation School in Kiln.

As most of you know Annunciation will be closed for other classes effective May 29 for lack of enough students to continue operations.

We are hoping there will be enough interest in the school for the pre-kindergarten—4 and 5-year-olds, and kindergarten—age 5 by Sept. 1, so Annunciation will not have to close entirely.

Registration is from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at the school office. For more information call 255-1869.

There will be a big benefit dance on Saturday night at the Hancock County Fairgrounds.

The benefit is for a 12-month-old girl in need of a Cockern's Heart Monitor.

Junior Necaise's Country Editions will provide the music for the benefit dance.

We realize there are many folks trying to make this a very successful venture.

The fairgrounds are located on Longfellow Road.

We had our share of warm weather in November and December and the cold breezes seem to be making up for lost time in recent weeks.

It looks like it is going to be cold for the rest of the winter.

I don't know about you, but I am looking forward to Spring and Summer, as I am tired of getting the ice off my windshield.

Graduates of St. Stanislaus from throughout the world will gather Saturday night at the Jefferson-Orleans in Metairie for an Alumni Reunion.

This is an annual event for St. Stanislaus and it is a good time for former graduates to catch up with their old classmates and discuss school days.

It is hard to realize how fast time goes by when we think about the year we graduated from St. Stanislaus.

We know there is a lot of interest around town by members of some of the honored classes this year and are hoping there will be a large attendance.

We hope to see you at the reunion.

There are still several openings for contestants in the Miss Hancock County Chamber of Commerce contest to be held on Sat., Feb. 2.

The contest is open to young ladies between the ages of 18 and 22.

Young ladies interested can call the Chamber at 467-9048 for further information.

THE PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

It's Time for Better Use of Tax Dollars

Just as legislative committees are closing out months of examination of the state's tax structure, concluding, as expected, that the state is still in a fiscal crunch comes word from the state Auditor about expenses at the local level.

In a written communication within recent days, state Auditor Ray Mabus has reported the Auditor's crackdown on the use of public office for private benefit has resulted in a savings of at least $20 million at the local government level this far this year. Mabus was referring specifically to his instruction to county supervisors that they could no longer gravel private drives at public expense.

Think about what could have been done for all citizens of Mississippi in recent years if that $20 million had been put to proper use. How much education, how much vocational training, how many miles of streets and roads, how many health care facilities could we have purchased at the rate of $20 million per year?

There is still more work to be done. County unit road systems will save at least $27 million per year, according to a study by the Mississippi Economic Council, and there are other efficiencies which could be introduced to local and state government.

Mississippi taxpayers are justified in demanding better use of tax dollars before taxes are increased.

CHAMBER DIRECTOR RECOGNIZED—John Mason, president of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce, congratulates Jeannie Garcia on being selected as director of the month for December. Garcia is the past Special Events chairman. The plaque was presented at the chamber's monthly meeting held on Tuesday. (Staff photo by Ellis Cuevas).

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Who's responsible for dead trees posing clear and present danger?

Jan. 26, 1985
The Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Dear Editor,

I need some information about who is responsible for overgrown, unused property.

There are two 40- or 50-foot dead trees just a few feet from my fence, side and back yard.

Every time the wind stirs a little they shake a lot.

I've seen Mr. Bennett and I've filed numerous complaints through City Hall for over six months.

I'm told each time to wait 30 days for the owner to cut them, and if the owner doesn't do it, then the city will.

The problem is no one will, and I'm told it's illegal for me to cut them.

My grandchildren can't play in the yard at all. A four-foot branch has already fallen while they were playing. Fortunately no one was hurt.

Do I have to wait until someone is hurt before all this red tape and wasted trips to City Hall do any good?

I'm expected to vote, pay taxes, utilities, and I don't think that I'm allowed to take as long to do these things as the city is given to just take their time.

Any advice you can give me is better than what I've had so far.

Thank you,
Mrs. L. P. Holland

Legion posts, Auxiliary units campaigning to elect national commander from Mississippi

Dear Editor:

I know that some of your readers have seen the name Jimmy Dean mentioned in connection with the American Legion and a fund raiser we are having, and I'm sure a lot of them don't know what it's all about. I'll try to explain.

The American Legion, the largest veterans organization in the world, will soon be 66 years old and there has never been a national commander from the state of Mississippi.

In August of 1986 in Cincinnati, Ohio we hope to change this fact. Jimmy Dean, a legionnaire from Corinth, Miss., will run for national commander of the American Legion.

This is no small task. It requires many miles of travel around the United States and even some foreign travel.

The expenses of a candidate for commander are vast and nothing is provided.

The individual posts and units around the state are all working to get a Mississippian elected.

Our local post and unit are having a "Jimmy Dean Day" with a meatball and spaghetti supper prepared by "Big John" Rutherford.

"Jimmy Dean Day" is Feb. 8 and the supper will be served from 5 to 8 p.m. with take-outs starting at 4 p.m. at the American Legion Home on Green Meadow Road.

We are inviting the public to help us establish another first for the State of Mississippi.

Tickets sell for $3 each and can be purchased from most legionnaires and auxiliary members.

Hancock County residents have always been supportive of legion functions and we hope you will support us now.

For God and Country,
Lou Wilkerson
9th District President
American Legion Auxiliary

Good-Ole Boys are at it agin

Common Cause/Mississippi has denounced ethics legislation filed in the Senate by the supporters of the constitutional amendment defeated at the polls in 1984.

"The backers of the failed amendment are ignoring the will of the people—expressed in the election. Incredibly, they are offering a proposal that is an even more radical destruction of constitutional ethics protections than the one overwhelmingly rejected by Mississippi voters in November," stated Paul M. Neville, vice president of the citizens' lobbying organization.

Common Cause spearheaded the drive to defeat the amendment last fall.

Senate Concurrent Resolution 531, introduced by Senator Martin Smith of Poplarville, would "gut the protections against profiteering at all levels of government," Common Cause charged.

Neville added, "Apparently supporters believe that if the Legislature spreads the opportunity for corruption down to local governments, the amendment will have a better chance to pass. Common Cause believes that the people were not fooled in 1984 and that it is folly to think that this proposal will fool the people in 1988."

The amendment, if passed, would allow supervisors to contract with their own counties and council members to sell materials to their own cities with the only restriction left that they could not vote for such contracts.

Common Cause predicted that loosening the ethics law in this way would lead to a "triumph of good ole boy government at all levels in the state," as political cronies would steer profitable bills and contracts into law reciprocally for one another.

The group said such dealing would mean higher taxes to pay for profits to politicians.

Neville said that Common Cause has endorsed "a rational approach to amending the ethics section of the Constitution in legislation introduced by Representatives Dewayne Thomas, Jackson, and Frances Savage, Brandon, and Senator Stephen Hale, Moss Point.

This proposed amendment (HCR 17 and SCR 533) would retain the basic protections of the 1890 Constitution, Neville declared, while eliminating the possibility of purely technical violations of the ethics law.

Of particular interest to believers in good government, according to Neville, is the measure's provision to remove the Ethics Commission from politics and from dominance by the Legislature by providing for supervision of the commission by the Supreme Court. "The judicial branch," he said, "is the appropriate home for the determination of ethical conduct by public servants."

News From The Governor's Office

Gov. Bill Allain

STOPPING DRUG TRAFFIC

Governors from the five Gulf states have started a war on drug trafficking along our southern borders. I recently attended a meeting in New Orleans to discuss our drug problem with federal and state officials, as well as my fellow governors. From the meeting came a framework within which we will try to reduce the drug traffic along the Gulf of Mexico coastline.

I participated in the one-day meeting with Gov. Mark White of Texas, Gov. Edwin Edwards of Louisiana, Gov. George Wallace of Alabama, and Gov. Bob Graham of Florida. Each of us found that we have common problems in the increase of drug traffic within our state. Mississippi has the same problems of other states and we all agreed we need the help of the federal government in solving these problems.

The Gulf states are geographically closer to the problem of drug smuggling, as so much of these illegal substances are coming from Central and South America. When the federal drug officers cracked down on drug trafficking in Florida, many of these drug pushers moved their operations further along the Gulf Coast, into ports and airfields in Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, and Texas.

In Mississippi, our drug case load is increased 114 percent over last year. While we are having more convictions, we still need to beef up our operation more. On the state level, I have asked the Legislature to give the state Bureau of Narcotics 10 additional agents. That will increase our number of agents to 65 statewide.

The state of Mississippi has only four agents from the federal drug bureau working within our borders, compared with hundreds in states like Texas and Florida. We have asked the agency for additional agents here and we will continue to ask.

Mississippi is the second or third staging ground for drugs. Many come into our state and are processed or passed along to another state through Mississippi. These drugs are destroying our old people, young people, and all our people. We must do something to stop it.

The discussions and conclusions of the governors' meeting will help us. Anytime you have the leaders of five states get together and agree on a common solution to problems, action will follow.

Our group approved a resolution, which I was proud to second, that does the following:

1. Asks the President and federal agencies to do what they can to defend our Gulf border from drug smuggling.
2. Requests Congress to pass laws to designate the Department of Defense as the agency to search for and stop drug smugglers.
3. Urges additional funding and manpower for federal drug enforcement agencies.

We have each sent this resolution to our Congressional delegations, and I believe the response will be good. In addition, we will meet again in Washington during the National Governors' Association meeting in February to determine the next step in stopping drug sales in our states, and hopefully the entire country.

Senator Thad Cochran

SPECIAL REPORT:

REPEAL MILEAGE LOG

Senator Thad Cochran is sponsoring legislation to repeal controversial provisions of the 1984 Deficit Reduction Act pertaining to mileage log requirements on business vehicles.

"The Internal Revenue Service interpretations of this act and subsequent regulations are proving to be an undue burden on businesses and individuals," the Senator commented.

"It is particularly aggravating to small businesses, farmers and many others in Mississippi," he further stated.

Senator Cochran said he was joining a bipartisan group of his colleagues in sponsoring the bill to repeal provisions of the 1984 act dealing with automobiles, trucks and vans.

"We object to the portion that requires 'contemporaneous record-keeping' for these vehicles," he said.

The Senator said, "When the paperwork burden increases to the point required by this provision it becomes counterproductive."

He said sponsors of the repeal legislation would return the law to the eligibility criteria for a business tax deduction to that prevailing prior to 1984. Under the old law, taxpayers were only required to maintain adequate records or have other sufficient evidence corroborating his own statement to the IRS.

Under its interpretation of the 1984 Deficit Reduction Act, the IRS is requiring that a detailed log be kept of all business and personal use of a vehicle, or no deduction or credit will be allowed.

Also repealed would be the penalty provision, subjecting accountants, bookkeepers or other tax return preparers to a $25 fine for failure to certify that adequate records on vehicle use and mileage were maintained.

December unemployment above average

BY DENA BISNETTE

Hancock County's unemployment rate for December dropped to 10.4 percent, lower than November's 11.3 percent rate but higher than the county's 9.7 percent average rate for 1984.

According to statistics supplied by the Mississippi Employment Security Commission, 1,070 people were unemployed and 9,170 were employed in a total work force of 10,240 during December.

According to Ann Ladner, manager of the Bay St. Louis MESC office, 36 people were placed in jobs through her office last month.

"That's not a lot of jobs compared to other seasons but 36 is about average for this time of year," Ladner commented.

She said the number of jobs available usually begins to decline in October and stays down until spring, when outdoor industries like construction become active.

In November, 1,160 people were unemployed and 9,110 were employed in a work force of 10,270. The November rate was the highest recorded in Hancock County during 1984.

The year's low was in May, when unemployment dropped to 8 percent. The work force included 9,350 people that month, with 750 unemployed and 8,600 employed.

Unemployment percentages for 1984 included January, 10.6; February, 10.3; March, 9.3; April, 8.5; May, 8.0; June, 9.4; July, 9.5; August, 9.6; September, 9.7; October, 10.8; November, 11.3; and December, 10.4.

"Job placements picked up during 1984 as compared to the year before," Ladner said, "and we're looking for even more improvement this year."

"We're looking for spring to bring lots of new things, including the possibility of some construction jobs at the Borg-Warner plant," she added.

Looking back on 1984, Ladner said unemployment in early in the year was affected by hiring by Mason-

Chamberlain, which was preparing to bring its plant into full production.

In addition, another of the county's large firms, Alcan Cable, hired more than 20 people in March. That hiring was reflected in the April statistics and helped cause unemployment to drop below 9 percent.

May's 8 percent rate marked a seasonal decrease caused by summer hiring for retail and food service businesses, but unemployment again went above 9 percent in June and started climbing slightly.

One of the most visible increases in unemployment occurred in October, when a traditional seasonal increase helped put the rate at 11.3 percent.

The 10.4 December rate for 1984 was lower than the state's 11 percent rate, which included a high of 24.4 percent in Kemper County and a low of 5.4 percent in Rankin County.

Hancock County was one of 37 counties reporting decreased unemployment last month.

AWARD WINNERS—Receiving awards at the recent NAACP Supper Theater were, from left, Wesley Labott and Angela Davis, both scholarship winners; Paul Louis, community service; and Alonzo Daniels, membership. Also during the program Peter Farve accepted the public service award for his son, Harry Farve. (Staff photo by Brenda Heathcock)

Artificial fishing reefs for Sound under study today at Mobile gathering

The where and how of siting artificial reefs in waters off Mississippi, Alabama and Florida will come under scrutiny today in Mobile, according to the director of a marine research program in Ocean Springs.

The Mississippi-Alabama Sea Grant Consortium has invited leaders in the fields of sport and commercial fishing, marine industries, conservation and government to serve on an advisory committee and provide input on factors involved in artificial reef development, Dr. James I. Jones, consortium director, said.

The consortium is spearheading a regional pilot study to develop a plan for selecting sites and materials for artificial reefs in state and federal waters of the Gulf of Mexico.

Study areas are Gulfport-Biloxi; Mobile Bay (Pascagoula, Dauphin Island, and Gulf Shores, Ala.); and the Florida panhandle (Pensacola, Ft. Walton Beach and Destin).

Both recreational and commercial fishermen experience benefits from artificial reefs, Jones said. The Sea Grant study will establish practical guidelines for reef development based on analysis of benefits and the direct and indirect costs associated with various categories of sites and materials.

The $115,000 grant for the first year of the multi-year study was approved by the National Marine Fisheries Service from Saltonstall-Kennedy funds, special federal funds earmarked for fisheries research and development and derived from taxes on imported seafood products.

During the advisory committee meeting, investigators from the consortium member institutions of Mississippi State University, University of Mississippi and University of South Alabama will present research results on the sociological, legal and economic components of the study.

Representatives of Continental Shelf Associates, Inc., Tequesta, Fla., will provide an update on biological and operational aspects.

Other invited participants include representatives of the National Marine Fisheries Service, Alabama Department of Conservation and Natural Resources, Mississippi Department of Natural Resources, Gulf States Marine Fisheries Commission, Southeast Fisheries Association, Sport Fishing Institute, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, National Ocean Industries Association, U.S. Department of the Interior, Gulf Coast Conservation Association, Offshore Operators Committee, Florida Department of Natural Resources and the Mississippi-Alabama, Louisiana and Florida Sea Grant programs.

Sea Grant is a federal-state partnership to promote the wise use and development of the nation's marine and Great Lakes resources.

In Mississippi and Alabama the Sea Grant mission is carried out through a Consortium of nine universities and research institutions involved in marine research, education and public service.

Coast Bulldogs tree Wildcats

The Gulf Coast Junior College Bulldogs, behind the sharp outside shooting of Lee Fairley, defeated the Pearl River Junior College Wildcats 78-55 in Polarville, Jan. 24.

Fairley, a sophomore guard for the Bulldogs, scored 15 points in the first half, and sparked a 13-2 outburst that saw his Bulldogs pull away from the Wildcats in the final three minutes of the first half.

In the early going of the contest both teams played in spurts with the Bulldogs jumping to a 13-6 advantage, only to watch the Wildcats come back and knot the game at 13-all.

At the 11:19 mark of the first half the Wildcats took their first lead of the game, 17-15, as Dwayne Hanberry rebounded a Steve Gouner shot and powered it back to the glass for two of his team-high 16 points.

The lead would be only short lived as Fairley scored four points from long range to put the Bulldogs back ahead 19-17 with 9:53 left in the first half.

The two teams traded baskets for the next few minutes with the Wildcats, once again, gaining the lead, 26-25, at the 5:58 mark. Seconds later it was the Bulldogs getting a basket from Brent Cannon to regain the lead from the Wildcats, a lead they would never relinquish.

With 3:12 showing on the first half clock the Bulldogs held a 31-29 advantage before they broke away to outscore the Wildcats 13-4 to gain a 44-33 halftime advantage.

In the second half things didn't get any better for the Wildcats as the Bulldogs outscored them 11-12 in the first 2:55 of the half to hold a 55-35 lead.

At the 10:00 mark, with the score 59-45, the Bulldogs went to their spread offense where they forced the Wildcats to come out and play pressure defense causing three players for the Cats to foul. The Cats finished the game with only four players on the court as the Bulldogs coasted to the easy victory.

Carl Firven followed Hanberry in the scoring department for the Cats as he chipped in 13 points, with Donald Dunston adding nine.

With the loss, the Cats drop to 9-13, while the Bulldogs improve their record to 10-7.

Lady Cats lose to G.C.

The Lady Cats, who fell behind by 21 points in the first half, fought back to within one point, 63-62, with 2:01 left on the game clock only to let the Lady Bulldogs score the final three points of the contest to preserve the victory.

"I told the girls at halftime we need to make a run and narrow the lead to about 10 points before the 10:00 mark then we'll make another run before the game is over," said Lady Cat Coach Ned Eades. "If we had come ready to play ball in the first half we would have won the game."

Arlisa Silas led the Lady Cats with 26 points followed by Betsy Arcement with 12. Regina Thompson added nine with Carolyn Littles chipping in seven.

The Wildcat team returned to action Monday night when they traveled to take on Hinds (scores not available at press time) before returning home Thursday for their bout with East Central.

A normal emotion

Children can learn how to handle anger

By Norine Barnes
Child Development

Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service

Anger is a normal emotion sometimes. The condition is most often caused by a situation or people that we perceive as threatening. The threat usually boils down to not getting our own way or results in injury to our pride (ego).

Psychologists say that the first two steps in handling anger are: (1) acknowledging the anger, and (2) determining the true source of the anger.

With parental help, even young children can learn to deal with these first two steps.

At times, anger results in hurtful actions. Children should not be allowed to hurt other children, their parents, property or themselves in anger. Parents should show children they understand how the child feels. Let the child know there is nothing wrong with being angry, but the anger cannot be expressed by hurting another person.

Don't shame children for having angry feelings. Shaming will not make the anger disappear. In fact, it may cause children to bottle up their feelings inside where they will build and explode at a later date.

Younger preschool children (one to three years of age) usually show anger in physical ways such as biting, hitting, kicking, or breaking things. As they grow older, children will use words to tell others they are mad. Encourage children to say, "It makes me mad when you do that" or "Stop hitting me. It hurts."

Sometimes it's best for a parent to ignore a display of temper since some children learn that anger is an easy and effective way to gain adult attention. Temper tantrums are a case in point. If parents pay attention to temper tantrums, the children may use them to get his or her way. Parents serve as role models, so remember to set a good example. Remember that harsh words, screaming or hitting hurts others and diminishes self. Children learn most of their actions from adults.

Children feel less anger as self-esteem grows. It is easier to accept not always getting our own way and harder to hurt our feelings if we feel worthy and secure.

High school contest to focus on disabled

High school students throughout the state still have time to enter the 1985 Ability Counts Literary Contest, sponsored by the Governor's Office of Handicapped Services (GOHS), Mississippi Vocational Rehabilitation for the Blind and the Department of Rehabilitation Services, to focus attention upon abilities and problems of disabled Mississippians.

The contest, open to all 11th and 12th grade students in public, private and parochial schools, requires students to prepare a three-page report on the topic "Work: Independence for Disabled People." All essays should be submitted to area vocational rehabilitation counselors by Feb. 1.

School, county and state winners will be selected, and the author of the state's best essay will be sent to Washington, D.C., to attend the annual meeting of the President's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped and compete for national prizes totaling $10,000.

"The purpose of this contest," said Jan Larsen, GOHS director, "is to help our young people become aware of the needs and abilities of persons with disabilities in their communities. Students' participation in this contest will not only increase public awareness with regard to persons with disabilities, but will allow them to investigate the reciprocal relationship between employment and the ability of persons with disabilities to live independently."

For further information about the ability counts contest, phone the Governor's Office of Handicapped Services at 354-7745 in Jackson or the Governor's Service Line, toll-free, 1-800-222-7622.

Is America going to the dogs?

Ever wonder what the most popular canine in America is? According to the just-released Kal Kan Report, the top dog is the Retriever—winning as the friendliest as well as the most favorite breed.

Dog owners and non-owners across the country were questioned about breed preferences and were asked which dogs they associated with specific professions and famous people.

What else does the report reveal?

—The Collie and the Setter as the best-looking breeds, trailed by the Afghan and the Retriever.

—The Afghan as the most exotic breed—the classiest too. Following closely in the exotic category were the Shar-pei and the Lhasa Apso.

—The Bulldog as the homeliest breed; it received 42 percent of the vote. The Boxer and Chihuahua ranked second and third, respectively.

Americans definitely do prefer certain breeds, according to the report. Ranking in the top three for class and intelligence, the Poodle is also considered the most finicky. And both the Retriever and Afghan either win, place or show in seven separate categories.

Respondents were also asked to match canines with professions, that is, what breeds best suit certain occupations. Bulldogs were paired with politicians. Doctors should own a Bloodhound; the clergy, a St. Bernard.

Nationally, Lassie won as the most famous dog, edging out Rin Tin Tin and Benji by a nose. In the name game, Rover, Spot and Max are on the top of America's list; more unusual variations such as Yama, Magnum, Streaker and Poppogoni were also cited.

The complete results are available from Kal Kan, Department MAT, 3386 East 44th Street, Vernon, Calif. 90058-0853.

THE VOTE IS IN—America's favorite dog is the Retriever, according to the just-released Kal Kan Report. This nationwide survey on canine breed preferences, breeds associated with specific professions and famous dogs and famous people was commissioned by Kal Kan as a salute to the American Kennel Club's 100th anniversary.

These times are busy times, and people are busy.

Today's homemaker is a cook, housemaid, chambermaid, waitress, nurse, chauffeur and gardener, as well as a wife, mother, job holder and community leader. For her the problems of meal planning and food preparation are more challenging than ever.

But it is still possible to provide the comforts of peaceful, enjoyable family living traditionally associated with the table and with some shortcuts to good eating.

No magic formula exists, but there are some helpful suggestions on how to prepare quick and easy meals with little work and energy. Follow these suggestions and still have the satisfaction of creating nourishing, appetizing meals for family enjoyment.

Be well organized in plans and have a sound knowledge of meal planning, cooking principles, and food values. Having the ability to prepare simple, nourishing and interesting meals in limited time takes skill and imagination. Food organization is perhaps the most important key to time-saving meal preparation.

Advance planning and not fast footwork is the secret to cutting down kitchen time, yet serving really good meals and not just casual snacks. Allow time to plan. Having a well-organized, convenient place to do the planning with paper, pencils, recipe file, cookbook and Basic Four Food chart is important. Collect time saving menus, recipes and ideas. Save recipes and menus that have been found to be timesavers.

Ask, "Just what do I want to do? Cut preparation time? Spend less time on last-minute preparation? Spend less time in serving the meal? Or is it to spend less time in clean-up?"

Basic rules of menu planning apply whether it is a quick meal or a "Sunday Special." In trying to cut down on time, make sure not to cut down on good standards of nutrition, attractiveness and appetite appeal.

A market list should be part of the planning. Know what food supplies are in the freezer, in the refrigerator or on the shelves. It helps to keep a record of what is put in and taken out of the freezer and to group similar foods together so certain foods can be found. Some homemakers like to package together foods for an entire meal.

Arranging canned food according to kind on the shelves enables the homemaker to know at a glance what's on hand. Shopping once or twice a week saves time, money and energy. Foods listed in the order that they are found on the grocery shelves speeds shopping.

Once plans are made, the next step is to use them. If they don't work out, change them so they will. Time-saving meals include several types. If a family likes simple meals, food and mixtures and is willing to try new ventures into eating, there are endless possibilities in the main-dish meal.

Many of the foods needed for good nutrition may be combined in one dish that is appetizing and good to eat. Main dishes prepared ahead and frozen include: cooked meat and poultry, stews, meat or poultry pies, meat loaves, chili con carne, meatballs in sauce, stuffed peppers, various casserole dishes and creamed meat, poultry and fish. Cool the food quickly and then package and freeze it at once.

Oven meals are easy to prepare and do not demand close attention while cooking. A complete meal in the oven (except salad and beverage), can be prepared with careful planning. Select foods that require about the same baking temperature. At 375 degrees F, for example, a meat loaf can be baked along with tomatoes and apples. Potatoes require 10 to 20 minutes longer than at 425 degrees F. When the meat loaf comes out of the oven boost the temperature to 400 degrees and put in a pan of muffins. Make a salad and a beverage, and dinner is ready.

While planning, a broiler meal can be the answer to the meal at 5:30 p.m. when the homemaker enters the kitchen at 5 p.m. Broiler meals need more watching than oven meals, but the cooking time is shorter. They also simplify dishwashing because the whole meal is cooked in one pan.

With a freezer, a supply of prepared foods that need only to be thawed or heated before serving can be kept on hand. Save time by preparing two or three times the amount needed for one meal and freezing the extra amount.

Fishery management awards announced

Senator Thad Cochran has announced awarding of two grants totaling in excess of $180,000 for fishery conservation and management programs along Mississippi's Gulf Coast.

Cochran said a grant of $110,952 was approved by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration for the state's Bureau of Marine Resources in Long Beach.

A second grant totaling $70,000 was awarded by NOAA to the Gulf Coast Research Lab in Ocean Springs.

The Senator said the grant money will aid researchers in developing methods to improve management of U.S. fisheries along the Gulf Coast.

Research center provides free racial statistics

The Mississippi Research and Development Center has released a new study, "Profile of Mississippians by Race," which analyzes certain socioeconomic differences between blacks and whites in Mississippi.

The study, prepared by Ruby N. Hendricks of the Economic Analysis Division, uses 1980 Census data as the basic source of information and will be distributed to individuals and groups concerned with economic development in the state.

The publication concentrates on statistical differences between the races in Mississippi in five areas: population, education, employment, income and housing.

Free copies of the publication (five copies or less) can be requested by writing to Publications, Mississippi Research and Development Center, 3825 Ridgewood Road, Jackson, MS 39211, or by telephoning (601) 982-6468. There is a postage charge when more than five copies are ordered.

DTAGS—The main components of the Deep-Towed Array Geophysical System fish are the Helmholtz transducer, left, and the sound source power amplifier, housed in the ball-shaped structure, right.

A note of warmth, or rather, many notes of warmth in last weekend's Inaugural festivities—frost-bitten as they were—were the tons of Bananas Foster served up flaming in the Washington Convention Center during the "Tastes of America" celebration there.

As columnist Betty Guillaud of The Times-Picayune/The States-Item phrased it, it was "probably the warmest spot in Washington over the weekend with bananas cooking over a brightly burning fire while the chefs flamed high-octane liqueurs for the dish's distinctive flavor."

Brennan's famed restaurant in New Orleans was one of 50 restaurants across the United States picked to offer selections for the three-day celebration in the Convention Center, and Ted Brennan was on hand with Chef Mike Roussell and retinue to ensure that all went well, during the many receptions and parties in the center, as well as for the general public, not to forget the Presidential Tasting on Saturday evening!

I haven't heard the final figures, but more than 4,000 persons were expected to pass through the center each day—and that's a lot of bananas!

Bananas Foster, one of my favorite dishes, is spectacular, but easily assembled. My thoughts drifted back through the years, to the time the late Owen Brennan, founder of Brennan's, spontaneously dished up this treat as a tribute to the late Dick Foster, more than 30 years ago, as I recall.

And, as the spirits flamed, one of my young sons exclaimed, in the clear, strident tones of childhood,

"Wow! What a super banana split!" That brought the house down, and Owen hurrying over to our table, to give the youngsters a taste. So, here's:

BANANAS FOSTER

The classic recipe for one serving calls for a ripe banana, peeled and halved lengthwise, a tablespoon of butter and two of brown sugar, a dash of cinnamon, and a half-ounce of banana liqueur and a full ounce of white rum.

Simply melt the butter in a chafing dish, add the sugar and blend well, saute the bananas in this, sprinkle the cinnamon over. Pour the liqueur and rum over and ignite, basting the bananas with the flaming "spirits." When the flame dies down, serve over vanilla ice cream.

If you're not too sure of yourself, or not too good at pyrotechnics, you may want to heat the rum in a metal cup or small pan, ignite and pour over the bananas. Serve over vanilla ice cream.

And, since you probably won't be doing this just for one, here are proportions for four servings:

1 pint vanilla ice cream
8 Tbsp. butter, cut into bits
½ cup brown sugar
4 bananas, peeled and halved lengthwise
½ tsp. cinnamon
½ cup banana liqueur
1 cup rum

Proceed as above. You may wish to cut the bananas into smaller pieces, or you may want to saute the bananas in the butter before adding the sugar—or—please yourself, vary the dish as you wish.

ETV Brief

FARMWEEK

An interview with Sen. Thad Cochran (R-Miss) is tentatively scheduled for "Farmweek" at 7:30 p.m., Monday, Feb. 4 on Mississippi ETV.

Cochran was scheduled to be a speaker at the Southern Agri-Business Forum in Jackson on Jan. 31.

Also tentatively planned for an interview is Wayne Boutwell, president of the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives.

Featured on every edition of "Farmweek" are a comprehensive list of farm prices and market information, farm news, a calendar of upcoming events, advice for producers and weather forecasts. The series is co-produced by Mississippi ETV and the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

Teacher education scheduled on METV

Alcorn State University and the Mississippi ETV network will jointly offer a nine-part teacher recertification telecourse entitled "Teaching Writing: A Process Approach."

The lessons will air on the statewide ETV network at 3:30 p.m., each Monday, Jan. 28 through April 1.

"Teaching Writing: A Process Approach" presents a five-step model based upon current knowledge of the composition process. It demonstrates teaching strategies for each step in the writing process: diagnosis, pre-writing, editing, and evaluation.

DTAGS pass tests

The Naval Ocean Research and Development Activity (NORDA) recently completed a four-year development of a unique Deep-Towed Array Geophysical System (DTAGS), with a successful engineering field evaluation of the entire system in the Blake-Bahama Basin, some 270 nautical miles east of Cape Canaveral, Fla., and in a second operational area some 140 nautical miles south of Bermuda.

Martin Fagot of NORDA's Ocean Technology Division is project manager for the DTAGS development. He lives in Bay St. Louis.

The DTAGS provides ocean environmental scientists with a new geophysical measurement capability in a single, comprehensive system towed near the ocean floor. DTAGS' geophysical data allow development of definitive models of ocean floor and subbottom acoustic transmission which are used to predict and, thus, improve the performance of Navy acoustic systems.

The system evaluation tests, marked the first time the entire DTAGS has been operated at sea as a unit in its new configuration.

Since its last at-sea operational evaluation in 1983, the DTAGS' multi-channel hydrophone array has been lengthened from 675 meters to 1,000 meters, a high data rate digital record system has been incorporated into the system and a short baseline navigation system has been added.

In addition, the shipboard operations van has been upgraded with improved electronics, and a maintenance van has been added, as well as a new frame assembly for a tow cable heave accumulator used to relieve cable strain due to rapidly changing sea conditions.

The fish is an aluminum, open-framed structure, housing a Helmholtz resonator sound source, power amplifier, telemetry electronics, junction boxes, motion sensors, a current meter, an array transducer, an acoustic transponder and system interface electronics.

Steamlining the structure was unnecessary, since the drag on the fish was small, compared to tow cable drag. The system's designed tow speeds are 0.5 to 1.5 knots.

Fagot characterized the cruise, which originated in Miami and terminated in St. George, Bermuda, as "very successful."

The test platform was the ORV COLUMBUS ISELIN, a ship leased by the Office of Naval Research (ONR) for NORDA from the University of Miami. DTAGS tow tests totaled eight days for the two operations areas, and covered a combined track length of 250 nautical miles. DTAGS was towed at depths of 4,500 meters in 5,000 meter-deep water, and at an average speed of 1.3 knots.

The Helmholtz resonator sound source operates over an acoustic band of 260 to 650 Hz, with a peak source level of 201 decibels /μPa @ 1m (reference 1 micro Pascal at one meter). The multi-channel array is an oil-filled hose design with 24 hydrophone groups spaced over the array's 1,000 meter length.

Interconnect sections contain engineering sensors (heading and depth), hydrophone pre-amplifiers and electrical interconnections. The data from each section are hard-wired to the fish, where they are digitized by a floating point amplifier system.

The data are then formatted into a PCM serial bit stream and telemetered up a 9,000 meter-long tow cable. The data are conditioned topside for real-time display, and digital data recording. The position of the fish relative to the tow ship is obtained with a short baseline navigation system.

The DTAGS provides the ocean exploration community with a unique geophysical examination tool, one with the fundamental advantage over existing near-surface systems of placing the entire measurement system, sound source and array much closer to the geophysical feature being investigated.

DTAGS is designed to operate down to a towed depth of 6,000 meters, with subbottom acoustic penetration to another 1,000 meters.

The system is now available for geophysical research throughout the Navy marine research community.

Bay police name juvenile officer

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

Sgt. Judith Childs of the Bay St. Louis Police Department was appointed as the city's first youth officer Monday, according to Murray Laddner, acting Bay police chief.

As youth officer, Childs will be working with the Youth Court and will also be in charge of setting up programs for churches or other organizations.

"We want to stop youth crime when possible before it gets started and get the youth involved with something besides being on the street," Childs said.

Childs said as of Monday when she began her new duties, the city's curfew law has been being enforced.

The curfew law states:

It shall be unlawful for any minor under the age of 18 to be on the streets of the city or at any public place, park or place of amusement or for any parent of any legal guardian of said minor to allow such minor to attend such public places, parks or places of amusement or to be on the streets of the city after the hour of 11 p.m. and before the hour of 6 a.m., unless such minor is accompanied by a parent, a legal guardian or is duly chaperoned by some person over the age of 21.

Childs said minors in violation of the curfew would be taken to the police station where the parents or guardians would be called to come get the minor and charges would be filed in youth court.

Both Laddner and Childs asked that parents or youths call Bay Police and talk with the youth officer, to try and prevent a problem.

"We also encourage and parents interested in working with the program to call," Childs said.

She will also head the junior police program.

A native of Illinois, Childs has been employed for the police department from more than two years. She worked as a dispatcher and as an auxiliary officer before training at the police academy in Laurel.

She was the first academy-trained female police officer in Bay St. Louis.

Clermont Harbor Commission to investigate Waterworks

By DENA BISNETTE

Members of the Clermont Harbor Civic Association and its Ad Hoc Committee for a Safe Water Policy learned Tuesday that the Mississippi Public Service Commission plans to investigate Clermont Harbor Waterworks.

About 18 members of the association and the committee traveled to Jackson by chartered bus to attend a PSC hearing on the utility's proposed rate hikes.

According to committee member Clyde Laddner, Public Service Commissioner Lynn Havens plans to send a PSC crew to determine what repairs and additions waterworks owner Johnson Utilities Inc. of Vicksburg has made to the Clermont Harbor system.

Johnson Utilities is requesting rate hikes that would charge $15 instead of the current $8.50 for monthly service. Additional proposed increases include changing first time connection fees from $250 to $800; charging $15 for reconnection and changing deposits from $10 to $15 for residential and commercial customers.

No decision will be made on whether the rate increases will be allowed until the investigation is over, Laddner said. During the investigation, the present rates will continue.

Laddner said committee member Peter LaStelle testified for the Clermont harbor group at the hearing.

LaStelle presented the PSC with records on service cutoffs, fluctuations in water pressure and other problems experienced by Clermont Harbor Waterworks customers during the past year.

"We also presented a petition asking that the current rates be reduced by one-third because we don't feel we are getting $8.50 worth of service," Laddner said.

Complaints by Clermont harbor residents have included: sandy or muddy water, service interruptions without notification, difficulty obtaining repairs and fluctuations in water pressure.

In addition to the group from Clermont Harbor, eight Jourdan River Shores residents who also purchase water from Johnson Utilities attended the hearing, Laddner said.

Veterans program funded

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

A program to assist Hancock and Harrison county veterans has received additional funding through a Labor Department grant, Congressman Trent Lott said Tuesday.

The $60,000 grant was awarded to Gulf Coast Business Services, Inc. of Gulfport.

"It is a refunding of an initial grant awarded in April of 1984 at a higher level, with provisions for additional activities," said John Bonner, executive assistant to the president of Gulf Coast Business Services. The grant is authorized under the Job Training Partnership Act and will provide eligible veterans with such services as outreach, skills, training and job placement.

Bonner said the new programs will not begin until after April of this year.

"We want the veteran community to know that this program continues," Bonner said.

Business Services has established an outreach program and is working closely with the veteran's administration so more veterans will be aware of the program, he said.

Tom Wise, veteran's services coordinator for Business Services, is in charge of the outreach program.

Bonner said Wise has called on several veterans' organizations to let veterans know of the benefits available, but that contact with many veterans has been made by word of mouth.

Under the initial grant, Business Services provided assistance to 176 Gulf Coast veterans, 34 of these were from Hancock County, Bonner noted.

"There are three classes of veterans that we can serve under this grant," Bonner said, "but we are not going to turn away any veteran."

The three principle categories of veterans we can provide assistance to include Vietnam Era veterans, veterans who have recently separated from services and not have had any employment in the interim time and service-connected disabled veterans.

"One thing added to the program this year will be a job fair which we hope to schedule for sometime after April," Bonner said.

"We want to bring employers together with the veterans and veteran's agency representatives for a one day 'job opportunity' for veterans," he added.

Anyone who needs information about veterans' benefits can call Business Services at 864-7924, for an appointment. Business Services is located at 2510 16th Street, Gulfport.

I feel the school board should collaborate," said Beat Three Supervisor Roger Dale Ladner.

"I don't think the county should have to take all of it."

Taylor also addressed the board with a progress report on the beachfront repair project.

According to Taylor, $140,000 in funding has been obtained for the planning phase of the project and will be shared by Hancock and Harrison Counties.

He also said that policy and technical advisory committees will meet Feb. 14 at 2 p.m. in the courthouse to discuss the project.

In a related matter, Beat Four Supervisor Sam Pernicelli reported that he has found four Bayou Cadet businessmen interested in investing private funds in the development of a harbor at Bayou Cadet.

The county hopes to cut the amount of funding needed for the project by using private funds. Current estimates place the harbor cost at $2 million.

Taylor is currently working on an application for a Community Development Block Grant to begin developing the harbor.

The harbor project will be part of the long-range beach repair program to be discussed Feb. 14.

In addition, the board accepted a certificate of public convenience and necessity for Smith and Smith Aircraft and set a public hearing on a bond issue for construction of the firm's facilities at Stennis Airport for 10 a.m. March 4.

The board also approved an advertisement for bids for security services at Port Blenville Industrial Park.

The board made the decision after James DeBlanc, director of the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission, asked that a private firm be employed to replace the deputies now providing security.

The board also acted on a recommendation by the January Grand Jury, deciding to request that the state legislature provide for the correction of tax assessments on public utilities.

Other business included reappointing Beat Five Supervisor James Trivirca to SMPDD; abandoning Freeman Road near Bayou Cadet; and acknowledging the appointment of Clay Hammack as county health officer.

ty of education are based not only on how much money is spent per pupil, but on possible changes in the teacher-to-student ratio.

Pass Christian schools currently have less than 25 students per teacher.

However, the legislature has placed a 10 percent cap on school taxes and much of the tax money will be needed to pay off bonds, Lizana believes there will be less money to pay teachers.

Less available funding and the possibility that smaller schools like DeLisle will be closed will result in more students per teacher, he said.

In addition, Pass Christian could lose representation on the school board because three of the five board members, under the current proposal, would be appointed by the Long Beach mayor.

Two would be elected at large from the area outside the Long Beach city limits and one or both could come from DeLisle or Pass Christian.

However, the Pass Christian mayor, who currently appoints three of the district's five board members, would lose his appointments, Lizana explained.

Lizana also commented that any consolidation made now could be obsolete in 10 years because of growth projections for western Harrison County.

A consolidation could also have an adverse effect on any future bond issues because it could polarize communities and damage the possibility of a majority vote.

EXPERIENCES OF BLACK

Mississippi is one of the most important states in the history of the American Black population. It was one of three states to have had a black majority—Louisiana until 1890, South Carolina until 1920 and Mississippi until 1940.

The Afro-American Studies Program at The University of Mississippi is bringing together scholars from across the nation for a two-day conference, "The Experience of Black Mississippians."

The Feb. 8-9 conference on the Ole Miss campus will examine a broad spectrum of topics, including "The Migration of Black Mississippians to Chicago," "The Farish Street Community of Jackson," "The Black Press," and studies of Monroe and Yazoo counties.

Four arrested following hunt

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

A Bay St. Louis juvenile was arrested Sunday following a search through the woods with bloodhounds, according to Bay Police Investigator Joe Pica.

The search for the juvenile began after another youth had reported being chased with a butcher knife.

The boy was traced back to his home where he and three others were arrested.

Shawn Henderson, 18, 301 St. Francis St., was arrested for disobeying a police officer and two female juveniles were also arrested.

Officers assisting with the search and arrest include acting Bay Police Chief Murray Laddner, Bay Police Officers, Pamela Clark, Herbert Steube and Don Osco; and Hancock County deputies.

Governor firm on $1,500 teacher pay raise with no tax increase for state residents

Governor Bill Allain Monday repeated his commitment that state schoolteachers should be given an average $1,500 pay raise this year without raising taxes for other state residents.

The governor told members of the Electric Power Association of Mississippi that teachers do deserve a pay raise, but it should be a pay raise that other taxpayers can afford to pay.

He said his opposition to giving teachers the $3,500 that their associations have demanded does not have any relation to his commitment to education.

"I am committed to an education system second to none. But we must remember that we are a poor state. One-fourth of our families are below the poverty level. There are not a lot of people to get that tax base from. We're on a tight budget; there is not one nickel left. I don't want to raise taxes for teacher pay raises, but don't let anyone try to tell you that my administration is not dedicated to education," Allain said.

The governor said the state can fulfill its obligations this year without a tax increase.

"I realize that teachers have college educations and have money invested in their educations. Even though other taxpayers may not have a college degree—those who pump gas or clerk in stores—but that's who we get the money from for these teacher pay raises. And those taxpayers only have so much money. We must not only consider the federal budget or the state budget; we must consider those personal budgets. If we take more taxes from these people, they won't be able to send their children to college or buy a new house. People should make their own decisions about their priorities," Allain said.

He asked the conferees to contact their legislators in opposition to any tax increases this year. "Help us hold the line on taxes. Help us hold the line on spending. I've learned in all my years in government that government will spend every dime and still want more."

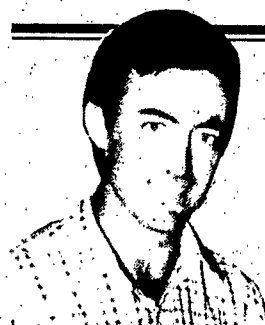

The governor also took issue with some of his critics on his stance against new taxes for teacher pay raises. "Leadership does not mean getting up and supporting what everyone wants. We've shown what leadership is. I think it's leadership when I say we should give teachers a pay raise without raising taxes. It would be easier for me as governor

County Agent's Notes

Winter Garden Preparation

The first two months of the year can be frustrating for gardeners as frequent rains and cold weather delay gardening activities.

Gardeners in south Mississippi should start seedlings of warm weather vegetables. Tomatoes take only six weeks to grow a good transplant, but peppers and eggplants need 10 to 12 weeks. Daytime temperatures of about 75 degrees and night temperatures near 60 are best. The plants need plenty of light.

If onions and cabbage plants are set out too early, they may receive sufficient cold to make them flower rather than bulb and head.

Cut Irish potatoes several days before planting and allow the cut surfaces to dry at room temperature to reduce seed piece decay. Seed pieces should weigh about 1.5 ounces each. You will need 10 pounds of seed potatoes per 100 feet of planted row.

Apply fertilizer, such as 13-13-13, to asparagus beds in January. Broadcast 1.5 pounds per 100 square feet of bed area. If you are starting a new asparagus bed and nursery plants arrive before the bed is ready, store the plants in the refrigerator.

If you didn't test your garden soil in 1984 for lime and fertilizer needs, be sure to test it soon before gardening is in full swing.

The number of gardeners testing their soil in 1984 declined greatly. Even though there is little cost associated with testing, the dollars that may be saved in fertilizer cost or the value of extra vegetables produced as a result of testing will more than pay for the test.

Mississippi Power Company 1984 rates among lowest of 60 companies surveyed Mississippi Power Company reports its customers paid less for electricity during 1984 than the customers of 48 other utilities, according to a survey of 60 electric companies nationwide.

And Mississippi Power Company says it has no plans for increasing rates during 1985, the third year in a row the utility has not increased rates.

The survey, conducted monthly by the Jacksonville Electric Authority, ranks utilities according to how much they charge residential customers for 1,000 kilowatt-hours of electricity.

Mississippi Power Company's average charge of $63.49 for 1,000 kilowatt-hours gave the utility an annual ranking of 49th among the 60 utilities surveyed.

In other words, more than three-fourths of the utilities surveyed charged more on average for electricity than Mississippi Power Company did during 1984.

"We believe this speaks well of our efforts to provide the best service possible while keeping costs at a minimum," Alan Barton, president of the Gulfport-based utility said.

"We have not filed a retail rate increase since early 1982 and we are not planning to increase retail rates during 1985."

From January 1984 through April, Mississippi Power Company's charge for 1,000 kilowatt-hours of electricity was $64.60.

But, from May through December the charge decreased to $62.93 after the settlement of a 1982 retail rate case.

Mississippi Power Company has further reduced its rates to begin 1985 and is currently charging $60.94 for 1,000 kilowatt-hours of electricity.

"Our cost per kilowatt-hour today is about the same as it was during the 1930s," Barton said. "The utility industry as a whole has gone through some difficult times in the last few years because of increasing inflation, interest rates and fuel prices. These factors have provided us with some difficult challenges. But we have met these challenges head on and I think our customers can see the results of our efforts in this survey."

The utility in the survey with the highest average cost during 1984 was Consolidated Edison in New York which charged residential customers an average of $142.70 for 1,000 kilowatt-hours of electricity. The utility with the lowest cost was Seattle City Light in Washington which charged an average of $26.36 for the same amount of electricity.

Seattle City Light is government-subsidized and generates its electricity with hydroelectric dams which eliminates fuel expenses.

Mississippi Power Company is a member of the Southern electric system and serves more than 169,000 customers in 23 southeast Mississippi counties.

Southern Company reports $2.5 billion budget for 1985 facility construction

The building of electric service facilities to meet the energy needs of the Southeast will require an investment of $2.5 billion in 1985, Southern Company President Edward L. Addison said this week.

He cited the continuing high cost of construction, environmental requirements, and expected growth in peak energy demands as key factors in determining the new budget.

A $7.1-billion construction program for the three-year period 1985-1987 also was outlined at a meeting of The Southern Company's board of directors.

The three-year budget calls for power plant construction at only those sites where work already has been initiated.

In addition, the budget includes funds for building and upgrading transmission lines, substations, distribution facilities, and new customer connections in Alabama, Georgia, northwest Florida, and southeast Mississippi.

Discussing the construction program, Addison noted that peak demand for energy in the region grew at an average rate of 2.4 percent a year during the past decade.

"And at the rate of increase we're now projecting—2.5 percent, annually—demand for electricity would double by the year 2012."

Many analysts are projecting that by the early to mid-1990s some areas of the country could experience a shortage of electricity," Addison continued. "Here in the Southeast, we're working to complete our program of power plant construction so that we'll be able to meet the energy demands of the decade ahead."

But Addison stressed that construction can be carried out only "...if our earnings are sufficient to provide the basis for additional financing through the sale of securities in the nation's bond and stock markets."

The Southern electric system currently has generating units under construction at seven sites, with the largest projects scheduled for completion between now and 1991. In total, the units will add 5.8 million kilowatts of generating capacity to the system.

In other board action, the directors declared a regular quarterly dividend of 48 cents a share on the company's common stock, payable March 6, 1985, to stockholders of record Feb. 4. This marks the 149th consecutive quarter—dating back to 1948—that The Southern Company will have paid a dividend to its common stockholders.

The Southern Company is the parent firm of four electric utilities: Alabama Power, Georgia Power, Gulf Power, and Mississippi Power.

The Southern Company's common stock is the most widely held electric utility stock in the nation and is one of the 20 most widely held corporate stocks in America.

US soybean prices hinge on South American crops

By Jimmy Bouner
Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service

Soybean farmers, plagued for months by low soybean prices, could be in line for improving prices in 1985 if a combination of market-related factors turn in farmers' favor.

But prices will likely remain stagnant unless these factors materialize, farmers were told during the recent Tri-State Soybean Forum in Monroe, La. recently. About 125 farmers attended the meeting.

Improving soybean prices in 1985 hinge on possible revision in 1984 soybean production figures, 1985 planting levels, lower interest rates and a weakening dollar, and diminishing prospects in competing South American soybean crops.

Truett Bufkin, an official with the Mississippi Soybean Association, told farmers that favorable shifts in the factors could improve soybean prices in 1985 beyond the U.S. Department of Agriculture's estimate of $6 to $7 a bushel.

"If some of these factors fall into place, we could see significant improvement in soybean prices," Bufkin said. "If they don't, these figures are probably very close to being right."

U.S. soybean carryover from last year, announced in November, is pegged at 215 million bushels, a figure that may be revised by USDA later in January. The 1984 U.S. soybean crop is estimated at 1.9 billion bushels.

"This 1.9 billion crop may be smaller because of a prolonged harvest," Bufkin said. "The possibility of short supplies is a factor, especially if the 1984 crop is reduced."

Soybean plantings in 1985 also will have an important bearing on prices, Bufkin said. An indication of farmers' planting intentions in 1985 will be announced by USDA in February.

"U.S. soybean plantings of less than 67 million acres will be positive," Bufkin said. "Plantings in the 70 million to 72 million acre range will have a negative impact on prices."

Weather concerns that have the potential to reduce soybean plantings this spring would have a favorable bearing on the soybean market, Bufkin said.

The soybean official also said a relaxing of credit policy and reducing the federal deficit will reduce interest rates and help improve prices for agricultural commodities.

But Bufkin said little improvement in demand for soybeans is expected in 1985 because of the strength of the U.S. dollar against foreign currency. A strong dollar reduces the purchasing power of foreign buyers.

"Normally, soybean prices strengthen after a poor harvesting season," Bufkin said. "That hasn't been the case this year because the demand is not there."

Southern Company affiliate names new president-CEO

A.W. (Bill) Dahlberg has been named president and chief executive of Southern Company Services, Inc. Dahlberg also has been elected to the board of Southern Company Services' parent firm—The Southern Company. Both appointments are effective this week.

Southern Company Services provides technical and specialized services to The Southern Company and to the other units of the Southern electric system—Alabama Power, Georgia Power, Gulf Power, Mississippi Power and Southern Electric International.

Dahlberg, 44, has nearly 25 years of experience with the Southern electric system. He joined Georgia Power in 1960 as a meter installer and advanced through positions of increasing responsibility in the meter, customer accounting, and financial services departments before being named vice president.

Dahlberg was appointed vice president—operations planning and control—in 1979. He was elected a senior vice president with responsibility for bulk power resources in 1982 and senior vice president, marketing, in May of 1984. In September, 1984, he moved to Southern Company Services as senior vice president in charge of the marketing, rate, and governmental affairs functions.

In announcing the selection of Dahlberg to head the service company unit, Edward L. Addison—president of The Southern Company—said, "Bill Dahlberg brings to his new responsibilities a broad base of experience, strong managerial skills, and demonstrated ability as a leader. I'm confident that under his direction Southern Company Services will provide our system with the most technologically advanced, competitively priced services available."

A native of Atlanta, Dahlberg earned a bachelor's degree in business administration from Georgia State University in 1960. Dahlberg will be based in Birmingham, the headquarters office of Southern Company Services.

Commercials claiming nutritional value of foods may be misleading

Recent food advertisements on television underscore how easily advertisers can confuse the public, whether intentional or not.

Ads for Kellogg's All-Bran cereal show middle-aged adults changing to All-Bran because the increased consumption of fiber is linked to a lower incidence of cancer.

Consumer groups believe this is misleading and that these ads should be removed from television.

Although the link between cancer and a low-fiber diet has been established, it has not been proven that a low-fiber diet causes cancer.

Fiber is the roughage or bulk found in some breads, cereals, fruits and vegetables.

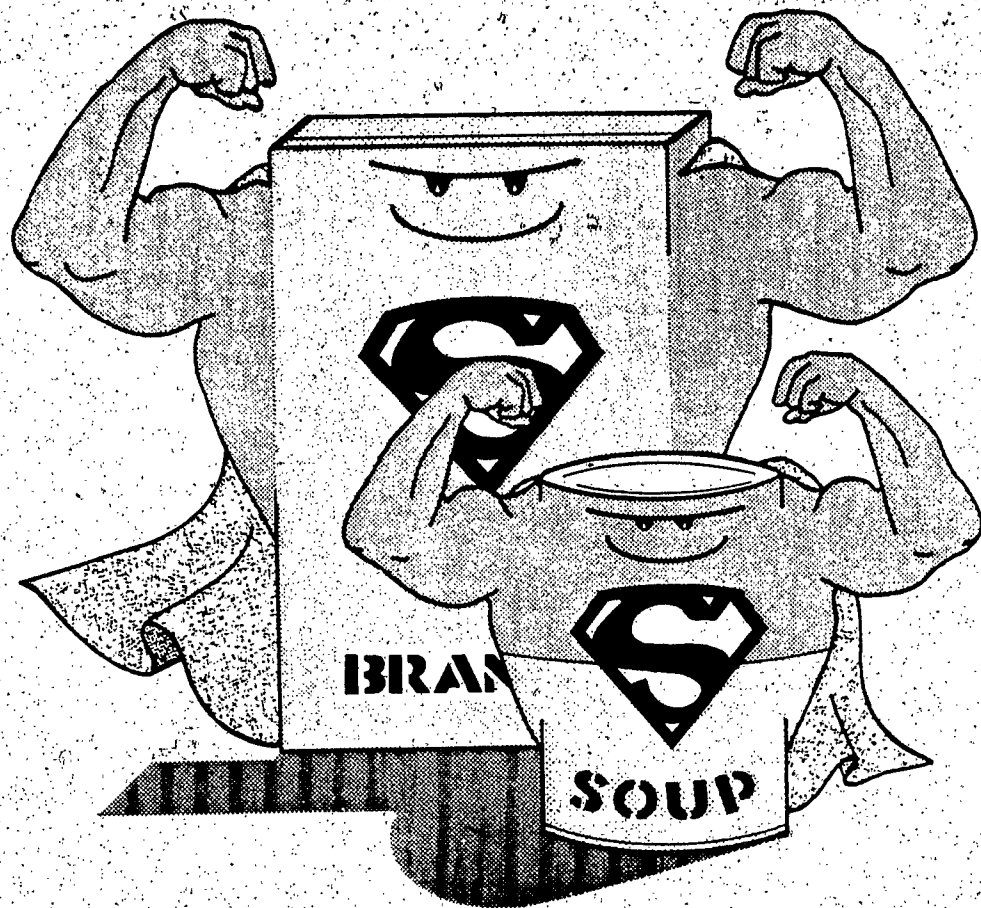

"Bran cereal is not the only source of fiber. Whole wheat products, brown rice, white and sweet potatoes, corn, dried beans and other starchy vegetables are all high in fiber," said Barbara McLaurin, a food and nutrition specialist with Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

Another ad currently on television also makes a nutritional claim. It is Campbell's "Soup is Good Food" campaign. The ads imply that soup is nutritious.

This underscores the reason why consumer advocates are concerned with ads that make nutritional claims. Although an ad may not contain any false information, it may

Whole Story Not Always Told Advertisers Capitalize On Nutrition Findings

Some soup is nutritious.

"For example, vegetable, cream of tomato and chicken noodle soups are all low in calories and fat and high in fluid content. They all are relatively high in salt, except for the soups made specifically with smaller amounts of salt," Ms. McLaurin said.

The three soups differ in nutritive content. Chicken noodle is the least nutritious, containing no more than ten percent of nutrients recommended by the U.S. Department of Agriculture Recommended Dietary Allowances (RDA).

Cream of tomato soup is an excellent source of Vitamin C. Forty percent of the RDA is in one eight-ounce serving. There are no substantial amounts of other nutrients.

Vegetable soup is an excellent source of Vitamin A. Sixty percent of the RDA is in one eight-ounce serving. There are no substantial amounts of other nutrients.

"Soup is wholesome, nutritious food but it can't completely take the place of other foods because it doesn't have enough nutrients. To make a nutritious meal, it is better to serve soup with a sandwich or cottage cheese salad," Ms. McLaurin said.

"There is no one food that will prevent, cure or cause a health problem. One must look at the whole diet," Ms. McLaurin said.

not tell the whole story about an issue.

Perhaps the most unbiased way to acquaint the public with diet recommendations is through advertisements such as those done by the American Cancer Society. Full-page ads in recent issues of some magazines discuss three types of cancer and recommend foods to eat to lower the risk of those cancers.

The ad states, "Foods related to lowering the risk of cancer of the larynx and esophagus all have high amounts of carotene, a form of Vitamin A, which is in cantaloupes, peaches, broccoli, spinach, all dark green leafy vegetables, sweet potatoes, carrots, pumpkin, winter squash, tomatoes, citrus fruits and Brussels sprouts."

"Foods that may help reduce the risk of gastrointestinal and respiratory tract cancer are cabbage, broccoli, Brussels sprouts, kohlrabi, and cauliflower."

"Fruits, vegetables and whole-grain cereals such as oatmeal, bran and wheat may help lower the risk of colorectal cancer."

The ad also encourages decreasing the consumption of alcohol, smoked fish, smoked sausage, nitrite-cured foods like ham and foods high in fats and salt.

HOLLYWOOD — Ready or not world, here comes Gallagher.

The undisputed "King of Prop Comedy" who has scored big on cross-country tours and on the tube with his Showtime cable specials, is about to lower his zany boom on the home video industry.

Paramount Home Video recently released two tapes by the outrageous comedian featuring some of his best material. Both programs "Gallagher — The Maddest" and "Gallagher — Stuck in the 60's" were taped in front of live audiences, and they successfully manage to transmit the fun and excitement of his most memorable and hilarious routines.

Gallagher, who is one of a dying breed of touring comics, is known for his wild and very strange sense of humor. Both tapes are capped off by his trademark sketch, The Amazing Sledge-O-Matic. This classic piece of comedy is alone worth the price of the tape as it gets funnier and funnier the more it is viewed.

On the music front, let me bring to your attention a few album cuts that are destined to become big hits in this new year.

Styx, the group from Chicago who recently broke up because of bad feelings between key members Dennis DeYoung and Tommy Shaw, may no longer be around, but their sound will live for a long, long time. DeYoung recently rang up big sales with his solo A & M album "Desert Moon". A single by the same name streaked to the top ten.

DeYoung's arch rival, Tommy Shaw, wanting to keep up with Dennis, issued his own solo LP and single, both titled "Girls With Guns." My pick from Shaw's album is a beautiful tune called "Lonely School." Shaw recreates the haunting style of Styx on this great ballad, which when released as a single will become an instant favorite of music lovers of all ages.

From the album, "Let Me Be The One" by Angela Bofill on Arista Records comes a pretty song called "You're Always There." Sounding exactly like Michael Jackson, Miss Bofill gives a perfect reading to this perfect love song. This song, which would be ideal for Michael, has the soothing kind of sound you never grow tired of.

Speaking of the Jacksons (at least one of them) and soothing sounds, you've got to give a listen to the third cut on the second side of the MCA album by New Edition called "Lost In Love." When you hear these five talented young men, you'll swear you're hearing the reincarnation of The Jackson Five. "Lost In Love" is not a cover of Air Supply's hit of a few years back, rather it's a lovely new gem given a polished performance by five fresh faces from Boston.

Until the next time, remember every body has a dream, don't sleep through yours.

COLD WAR

"Great Performances" presents a true espionage story at 9 p.m., Fridays, beginning Feb. 1 on Mississippi ETV.

"Man from Moscow," a three-part spy story set during the Cold War of the early 1960s, stars Christopher Rozycki as Penkovsky and David Calder as Wynne. The story dramatizes the real-life efforts of these Soviet and British officials to pass high-level Russian secrets to the West.

Laziness grows on people; it begins in cobwebs and ends in iron chains. The more business a man has to do, the more he is able to accomplish.

Personally,
We Think You Deserve
A Different Kind of Hospital.

Most people think that the worst thing about going to the hospital is . . . going to the hospital. We think you deserve something better. Our medical staff is top-flight. Exceptionally skilled. Thoroughly experienced. Our technology is state-of-the-art—from digital angiograms to computer-aided laboratory analysis. We offer the advantage of a convenient location, and the assurance of management by American Medical International. But all that doesn't mean we equate professional care with impersonal treatment. Quite the contrary. While we're big enough to provide a broad range of superb medical services, we're not so big that human concerns get lost in the shuffle. In fact, as healers, they're our first concerns. So, we give you the kind of attention that makes going to the hospital a much more comfortable experience. At Garden Park, health care is every bit as personal as it is professional. That's what makes us a different kind of hospital. The Difference Is Entirely Personal.

YOUTH SECTION

Unique horse breeding farm is home to CEHS teenagers

Elise Snider and Chris Barnes have daily chores at their family horse farm. Both Coast Episcopal High School students are the teenagers of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Snider.

The family farm breeds, trains and owns some 60 Paso Fino horses. Their northeast Hancock County location, Del Cabildo Farm, contains Grand National Champions and the largest breeding stock in Mississippi.

The operation involves hard work for the entire family.

won in competition. The parents feel that Elise's interest may develop into a lifetime involvement with Paso Fino horses.

Rob Bennett, a Spanish instructor at Coast Episcopal High School, traced the heritage of the Paso Fino breed in a recent article in the magazine 'Mississippi.'

He stated that Columbus brought these horses to the New World on his second voyage from Spain.

The Paso Fino breed is a combination of two European breeds: the Andalusian and the Spanish jennets.

are always on the ground.

Their characteristic gait is genetic: right rear, right fore, left rear, left fore.

Three speeds of paso gait are used for show purpose: classic fino, paso corto, and paso largo.

Performance on a wooden fino board producing a metered sound for the judges confirms the brilliance and style of the gait.

The classic fino gait is beautiful to watch. The corto speed can be maintained for miles without fatigue to the horse or rider. With the paso largo speed, the horse can travel 20 miles an hour.

Naturalism is a trademark for these unique horses. Forelocks, manes, and tails are left long and flowing.

They are seldom shod. The relatively small sized horses do not have any identifying colors or markings. They are very manageable.

Paso Fino horses can be ridden English, Western or bareback and trained to voice or leg command.

INTERVIEW—Sean Knight, a CEHS senior creative writing student, interviews Elise Snider at Del Cabildo, a Paso Fino breeding farm in northeast Hancock County.

Elise helps with the care and exercising of the horses.

Chris helps with a variety of stable jobs. He is also responsible for the care of numerous small animals such as dogs, ducks, geese and chickens.

Weekends and vacations are spent working for these teenagers.

On family trips to shows, Elise has begun riding the family horses and Chris has learned to use their video camera to record the events.

A panel in the family home is filled with a display of elaborate ribbons

The Spanish Conquistadors used this breed throughout the Western Hemisphere.

Now, there are 7,300 horses of this rare breed registered in this country with the highest concentration in Florida and the East Coast.

Many horses in the United States have been obtained from Puerto Rico and Columbia.

The Paso Fino breed is the smoothest riding horse in the world. Disabled children do not have problems with balance when riding them since three of the horses's feet

THIRTY-YEARS OLD—Endora at 30-years old is among the top ten dams in America. In 1983 as the Dam of the Year for the Paso Fino breed, her get had more show awards than the get of any other mare in North America. Endora is the dam of Bandolero, who is the only three time Grand National Champion of the breed.

Episcopal High School

GRAND NATIONAL CHAMPION—Elise Snider, CEHS junior, rides the three-time Paso Fino Grand National Champion Bandolero Royale. Her parents credit her with being responsible for nursing this stallion back from ill health with loving care. Although professional riders have been used for major shows by her parents' Del Cabildo Farm, Elise also has ridden in competition.

CHORE TIME—Chris Barnes, a seventh grader at CEHS, cools down Bandolero Royale, one of his many chores at the farm.

COMPETITION TRAINING—Elise helps a trainer drive and train Dios Mio del Cabildo. This five-year old stallion is a third generation descendant grandson of Endora's. The horse is driven on a long lead line in preliminary confirmation classes so that judges may have an unobstructed view. In 1984 this Paso Fino horse was fifth among American Confirmation Stallions.

BLACK STUDIES PROJECT

In 1930, almost as many of Chicago's black residents claimed Mississippi as their birthplace as they did Illinois. The experiences of black Mississippians, both of those who emigrated and those who remained in their home state, are an integral part of the history of black people in America.

The Afro-American Studies Program at the University of Mississippi recently received a $15,000 grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities to further develop a proposal submitted earlier to the agency for funding of the project, "The Experiences of Black Mississippians: Explorations Across Time and Space."

The project would explore the history of blacks during slavery, the emancipation period and as rural agricultural tenant farmers.

PRC reports President's, Dean's List students for 1984 Fall Semester

Seventeen percent of the students attending Pearl River College during the 1984 fall semester are listed on the school's elite President or Dean's lists.

Another 24 percent of the fall semester total are also on a list, however, it's the spring probation list. Another eight percent or 106 students were not permitted to register for class after the Christmas break because they were suspended for one semester.

Pearl River College is in its second year of upgrading its academic standards. New school policies include ACT entrance requirements, required final examinations, and financial aid satisfactory progress rules.

Last year 39 percent of the students enrolled were listed either on the probation or suspension lists. This year that number has dropped to 32 percent.

"I think these figures represent progress," said Dr. Marvin R. White, president of Pearl River College. "The students are realizing we mean business and are therefore buckling down and studying more."

This past semester 75 students made the President's List, which means the students had a 4 grade point average, or all A's. The Dean's List included 150 students who made at least a 3.4 grade point average.

FISH MARKET—Two sixth grade science classes have turned the hallway of Bay St. Louis Junior High into a fish market with their latest project, a floor-to-ceiling display featuring paper models of various types of fish.

According to their teacher, Roxanne Lagarde, some of the students are still working on models and the completed display will include about 60 fish. (Staff photo by Dena Bisnette)

Your Stars Above

ARIES (3-21/4-19) Very few people like taking orders, but unless we were born rich, all of us must take them at times. So swallow our resentment and don't argue just for the sake of asserting your independence.

TAURUS (4-20/5-20) Put your talent for hospitality to good use in your job. Offer to arrange the office party, or show visiting fireman your city. You have a rare gift for making any occasion super.

GEMINI (5-21/6-20) Don't let your enthusiasm lead you into stretching yourself too thin. You may be the most talented kid on the block, but no one can do everything all the time.

CANCER (6-21/7-22) There's no time like the present to start that diet you've talked of all season. Things aren't out of hand yet, but another month or so of future. This situation will give you the limelight you have always secretly craved.

SAGITTARIUS (11-22/12-21) True tragedy will rarely touch your charmed life, but neither will you enjoy a deep personal love. You don't stand still long enough for either to catch up with you.

CAPRICORN (12-22/1-19) Use your dry sense of humor to defuse a potentially damaging conflict in the business place. And then work to see that everyone forgets the conflict and gets on with the job.

AQUARIUS (1-20/2-18) You are so concerned with the world's big issues you overlook the smaller concerns of those nearest you. Make room in your life for your friends as well as your causes.

PISCES (2-19/3-20) Your concern with the real values of life make you a good friend to have, but don't be too lenient with people who make a mockery of your high standards.

DRUG QUIZ

by Curt Scarborough, Ph.D.
Used by permission; all rights reserved by DATE, St. Louis, Mo.

QUESTION—What is the relationship between cigarette smoking and "handedness?"

- Right-handed persons smoke more.
- Left-handed persons smoke more.
- Both groups smoke about the same.
- No studies have been made on this question.

ANSWER—More left-handers smoke than right-handers and they also smoke more, a group of researchers at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor has found.

According to a story in The U.S. Journal (11-79), Ernest Harburg, a research scientist with the Program For Urban Health, James Papsdorf, a professor of psychology, and Anna Feldstein, a professor of biostatistics, accidentally discovered the relationship between smoking and "handedness" while examining data from a community study in Detroit.

So far they have no explanation why more left-handers smoke and smoke more, but they think it may be related to stress and tension.

Correct answer - b.

Simmered Pork
with winter vegetables

(PREPARE THE DAY BEFORE SERVING)

- 5 or 6 lbs. fresh pork roast
- Boston Butt (bone-in)
- 5 whole all spice
- 1 tsp. dry mustard
- ½ tsp. ground ginger
- 4 medium raw baking potatoes, peeled and diced

- 1 Tbsp. salt
- Water
- 1 bay leaf
- 1 tsp. paprika
- 1 quart rutabaga (about 2 lbs.)
- 2 Tbsp. each chopped green onion and parsley

Put pork in large heavy kettle. Add water to almost cover. Bring to boil, skim and add salt, all spice and bay leaf. Cover and simmer 3½ hours. Cook, then chill over night in broth. Next day, remove all fat from broth and reserve for later use. Heat and strain broth. Trim excess fat off pork and set fat side up, on rack in foil-lined roasting pan. Rub with mixture of mustard, paprika and ginger. Roast in preheated moderate oven (375 degrees) 30 minutes, or until well browned and very tender. Put rutabaga in large saucepan with 2 cups pork broth and cook 5 minutes. Add potatoes and cook 12 minutes longer, or until very soft. Mash and add onion and parsley. Serve with the meat. Makes 6 servings with some meat left over.
